RE: Reply Comments
FCC File Nos. RM-9208 and RM-9242

Dear Commissioners:

This letter is in reference to the commission's consideration of granting licenses to new low power radio stations. As Operations Manager for a community radio station this concerns me a great deal. I am concerned that this action may not serve the public's interest.

With the deregulation of radio that has taken place, the airwaves have seen a surge of new AM and FM stations. In this market alone the airwaves are overpopulated with radio stations trying to serve the public. In this little farming community our listeners rely on us to give them news, weather bulletins, and other community happenings. For some people we are the only link to what is going on.

So I respectfully submit my opinion that our stations are serving the public to the best of our ability and that granting licenses to low powered stations would be detrimental to those of us who are continually striving to serve our communities in an already overcrowded radio band.

Respectfully,

Brian Hammett, Operations Manager
